Fall Special Town Meeting a possibility

Foundation: Give us land, we'll raise the money, center

By Rebecca Piro

The Andover Youth Foundation has targeted land behind West Fire Station, near Chandler and Greenwood roads, as the best place to build a youth center. Now, say members of the foundation, the next step is to convince the town to hand over the land.

"It would be an unprecedented event where the town would give land to a non-profit organization," said Selectmen Chairman Brian Major.

But that could happen as soon as this fall, if the town is compelled to call a special town meeting. And if no one else steps up to the task, the foundation is prepared to gather the 200 signatures needed to call Special Town Meeting 2000.

The foundation may propose the gift of land from the town, upon which it would erect a youth center after raising the $2.5 million needed. The center may then be donated back to the town for operational responsibilities, said Major.

For now, the foundation is working with architects from Bargmann Hendrie & Archetype Inc., the same company that designed the North Andover youth center, as well as additions to Temple Emanuel of Andover and North Andover's St. Michael's Church, to draw up the plans for the center.

At an upcoming meeting, the foundation plans to sit with Andover Youth Services Director Bill Fahey and members of the town's youth to hear input from the mouths of those who will utilize the center.

Long weekend of freedom

Fourth of July that fell on a Tuesday provided many residents with a blissful four-day weekend.

The weather cooperated, too, allowing people to enjoy their usual Saturday and Sunday before taking in fireworks on Monday evening, July 3. Andover and several surrounding towns sent up their flares at about the same time, allowing those with the right vantage point to catch four different displays.

The annual Horribles Parade and other events in the Park, including a pancake breakfast, filled the morning of July 4. The breakfast was primarily served by current and former selectmen, as usual.

Just how many pancakes are made, however, is anyone's guess.

"There are 18 pancakes on a grill, there are four grills, and we cooked from 8 to 11:30 a.m.," says Selectman Lori Becker. "We can do the math."

All quiet since Feb. vote to discuss gov't

No view of review yet

By Rebecca Piro

Selectmen have not yet begun the town-charter review they approved last February in a 3-2 vote, and former selectman Larry Larsen, who supported the motion earlier this year, is wondering why.

It may be that some town officials are afraid of what a charter review could suggest, said Larsen. A review could change Andover's open town meeting to a representative town meeting, or even make Andover a city.

"Come on, what's the problem?" Larsen asked. "Why hasn't anything happened? A charter review is an open and honest look at who we are and how we are governing ourselves. I don't understand the resistance and fear."

Although the charter review was agreed upon by the board as it stood in February, said Chairman Brian Major, the new and old members need to regroup before taking any steps. One seat has changed on the board since February, with Selectman Ted Teichert replacing the outgoing Larsen.

"The new board needs to decide if that is what we want to do, and if so, how do we set it up?" said Major. The details of the commission would need to be worked out. "Would private citizens help, and how soon would we need to get some answers back to the board?"

Selectman John Hess, who was one of the three voters for the review in February, is willing to entertain a look at the charter, although he does not see a lot of changes in store for Andover's government. He has not seen much evidence to suggest that the public feels a strong need to review. "Since we voted on it, no one has really come up to me and said, 'Hey, I want to be in on it.' It tells

Andover native joins journalism elite

Extra! Read all about it

A journalist with local ties has made some big news himself.

Former Andover resident Mark Pothier has been added to the 63rd class of Nieman Fellows and will undergo one year of studies at Harvard University. He is one of 12 American journalists chosen for the 2000-2001 class.

Pothier, 44, is executive editor of the Memorial Press Group, which publishes weekly papers. Now a Plymouth resident, he lived on Ivy Lane in Andover until he got married 17 years ago.

"I certainly didn't expect to win; it was a big surprise. When I applied I did it as a self-evaluation tool," he says. "When I became a finalist I became extremely biased and I really wanted it."

"When I was picked, I became extremely humbled by it. They chose people from the L.A. Times, the Washington Post and Time magazine."

"I think they wanted a broad mix of people and they didn't have anyone with a perspective on community journalism. I was something they didn't have," Pothier says.

Pothier's mother, Pat, says, "We didn't expect it. We are very proud and think that it is a chance of a lifetime. I can't believe that one of my one children could be capable of this."

Although Pothier won't begin his studies for another month, he's already begun his planning.

"My main concern when I go to Harvard will be local reporting and community news. I view it as a foundation of journalism," he says. "I would also like to broaden my horizons and take a jazz music class or something different."

Pothier will be taking a leave of absence from MPG beginning in August to pursue the fellowship.

Web question

Those who fear that the people of Andover have lost their sense of humor, should avoid reading further.

A full third of those responding to last week's Web question, "What's your favorite kind of Fourth of July fireworks?" selected the phrase "How dare you ask such a frivolous question." But, with only 18 people responding, that result isn't as bad as it first seems at first glance.

As for those who selected a type of fireworks, the most popular was the weeping-willow type. The weeping willow pulled in 39 percent of the overall vote.

Only one of those who responded to our poll said they just want "anything loud."

This week's question is:

Do you think Andover should open its town charter, which potentially will allow residents to make sweeping changes to town government?

Answers include:

- Yes, Andover's too big for its current form of government.
- Yes, but I don't want sweeping changes.
- No, I'm afraid the town might end up changing more than I want.
- No, Andover's fine the way it is.

Potential sub-contractors $400,000 over projections

Bids offered on schools project

So far, so good.

That's the word on the sub-contracting bids for the new schools building project, which as of last Wednesday night's meeting was as good a word as could be expected, according to the School Building Committee.

Committee members opened approximately 75 bids for 16 filed sub-trade jobs, such as electrical, plumbing and masonry work, said Project Manager Phil Tuminelli. Each sub-trade received between three and six bids.

"Considering the market, we did pretty well," Tuminelli said. "Bids have been coming in high all across the state, so we did pretty well percentage-wise."

The committee added the lowest open bids to get a tally of about $400,000 over what is estimated for sub-trades in the general cost estimate. However, extras such as canopies and bleachers in the original design can be eliminated or adjusted, said Tuminelli.

Until the general contractor bids come

Architectural image

A handful of firms bid on each of the sub-trades needed to build Andover's two new schools.

in on July 13, there is no way to tell if the total estimated cost will exceed the allocated sum of $32 million, he said.

"It doesn't mean too much right now until the general contracting bids come in," agreed Alan Champagne, vice-chairman of the building committee. "We could balance out and be right on budget."

Barbershop singers can cut it; headed to Montreal

Two Andover residents, Bob Shapiro and Chuck Gallant competed this spring with the Sounds of Concord barbershop chorus, in SPEBSQSA's Patriot Division contest, held in Peabody.

The chorus, based in Concord, came within 2 points — .25 percent — of winning the division title, while qualifying to sing at the district contest, to be held at Montreal in October.

Shapiro and Gallant also competed in several quartets.

Their "Town Meeting" quartet qualified on Friday night to sing in the second round of the International Preliminaries, held on Saturday night.

They finished 10th.

Their "Four a Good Tune Call" group won the Division Novice Quartet Championship.

Shapiro's "Happiness Shared" quartet also won the division championship, and qualified to sing at Montreal in October, while his "The 4Rs" quartet won the Most Improved title for the second year in a row.

Soccer group seeks closer association with Rec Park

Though Town Meeting 2000 voted against spending more than $1 million to put playing fields in the Recreation Park gravel pit, Andover Soccer Association (ASA) members still hope to score some fields there.

Last Saturday they were at the park having a picnic and cleaning the area.

There were two reasons for the get-together — three if you count the food.

First, ASA wanted to show park abutters that the group is a good neighbor, says Rich Nill, ASA fields coordinator.

Second, ASA wanted to introduce the area to soccer moms and dads unfamiliar with it as a place to put new fields.

"We think it's the perfect place for it. It makes sense for the town," says Nill. "We wanted to familiarize (parents with the area) in the hopes that they would support future efforts to put more fields down there."

ASA and other youth sports programs have been calling for more fields for years. It appears they will continue with their efforts to bring more fields to Rec Park. The effort failed this year, although the vote came after residents had already approved millions for new schools.

"We overuse the fields and we don't have a chance to rest them enough," says Nill.

In their clean-up of the gravel pit, ASA members found much more than broken glass and old gravel. Among the finds were tires, a file cabinet, a lawnmower, a propane tank and a backpack filled with full beer cans, says Nill.

Besides cleaning the pit, members also enjoyed the picnic, sailing lessons, a waterballoon toss, a parachute toss, volleyball games, soccer target practice and other soccer games.

Afarian golf tourney raises $10K

The Peter M. Afarian Memorial Scholarship Fund Golf Tournament, held Monday June 19, at Andover Country Club, raised $10,000 for the scholarship fund.

Golfers present included Christian Salini, this year's scholarship recipient from Andover High School. Christian, a goalie on the school's hockey team, was awarded a $2,000 scholarship from the PMA Scholarship Fund. The son of Jane and Americo Salini will be attending Worcester Polytechnic Institute in the fall. Dean Fuller, coach of the Fitchburg State Falcon Hockey Team, also joined the golfers.

The family established the fund in memory of Andover High School graduate and hockey player Peter M. Afarian, who was killed in an automobile accident on July 28, 1996. Peter had just completed his first year at Fitchburg State College, where he was a goalie on the FSC Falcon hockey team.

Each year since the fund's inception, money has been given to help support a goalie coach for the FSC hockey team.

A total of 134 family members, friends, and business associates golfed at the morning tournament, and 180 people enjoyed the lunch served in the Andover Room at the Country Club. The event included an auction, silent auction and raffle prizes.

Liz Kochakian, one of the organizers, said the tourney was a success not only because of the money raised for the scholarship fund, but because of the reason many of the golfers and guests were present, to spend a day together in memory of Peter Afarian. Co-chairmen of the tourney were John Annaian, Edward Annaian and Charles Kochakian.

The winners of the scramble format tourney won by matching cards were Steve Nazarian, Jay Ohanian, Russell Ohanian and Kory Sirmaian with a 60.

foyle, Jeff Smith and Joel Smith.

Second-place winners who won by matching cards were Henry Nassar, Matthew Zenakis, Michael Grassini and Fran Fournier with a 62. They were tied by Dan Hansberry, Todd Murray, Mike Trombly and Pat Walsh. Longest drive by ladies was won by Kathy Griffin and longest drive for men by John Nellenbach.

Nearest to the pin on hole #5 was Steve Fisichelli; nearest to the pin on hole #11 was Jeff Smith; and nearest the pin on hole #15 was Fran Fournier. Nearest the center line at hole #1 was Jay Ohanian. Four of the youngest golfers, Brian Azarian, Michael Azarian, Phillip Aroian and Steven Migridichian were presented trophies.

At the conclusion of the event, Peter's brother Gregory Afarian acknowledged everyone who organized, participated in the tournament, and contributed to its success.15

Midnight run: High-speed chase, dog's nose net car thieves

Following a high-speed midnight chase, Andover police apprehended two car thieves and recovered a stolen vehicle early Wednesday morning.

Andover police were on the lookout for a 1982 black Mercedes after North Reading police notified surrounding towns that the vehicle had been stolen from Route 28.

Officer Kevin Burke observed the vehicle passing northbound on South

Main Street and attempted to stop the car. The driver, refusing to yield, shut off the car's lights and accelerated to a high rate of speed, say police.

Officers Robin Cataldo and Ed Higgenbottom joined the pursuit, which led officers onto Interstate 93 North into Methuen, before the driver took the Pelham Street exit.

After the driver struck a pole on Pelham Street, the two males in the car fled on foot into the woods. A Salem, N.H., dog followed their trail to a house at 6 Temple Drive, Methuen, where the two were arrested.

The house was the home of one of the two suspects.

Benjamin Guarini, 19, of 6 Temple Drive, Methuen, was arrested and charged with receiving a stolen motor vehicle, resisting arrest, driving so as to endanger, failure to stop for a police officer, and driving a motor vehicle with a suspended license. Also arrested was Michael Antonucci, 18, of 63 Millpond Road, North Andover, who was charged with receiving a stolen motor vehicle.

The stolen car, which suffered damage to the rear quarter, was towed back to the station for processing. The owner was notified.

ALL THOSE YEARS AGO

100 YEARS AGO

An organized gang destroyed valuable property the night before July 4 by lighting a series of fires around town. After an old windmill blazed at 12:30 a.m. and a Phillips Academy dormitory burned down at 1:30 a.m., a local cricket club building caught fire at 3:20 a.m., prompting officials to initiate a formal search for the arsonists.

In order to clear room for modern developments, workers demolished the "Compo" building, an Andover landmark since its construction in 1835 by town Superintendent Nathaniel Whittier. The structure, which housed the Tye Rubber Company for about 44 years, derived its nickname from the "Compo" shoe — a patented design developed in the building that featured soles attached by a rubber composition.

Moonlight drives to Haggetts Pond gained popularity among young Andover residents as a form of Friday night entertainment.

75 YEARS AGO

In addition to traditional Independence Day parades and concerts, the July 4 celebration planned for Shawsheen Village was to include a baseball game between married and single men as well as a nail-driving contest.

Building Inspector Charles T. Gilliard issued permits for 18 houses, 20 garages, one gas station, one tea room, one land-office building, three camps, five hen houses, one woodshed, one cow barn, and one mill.

An advertisement for the Andover-based store P. Simeone & Company featured special prices on a new flavor of ice cream: banana custard.

John D. Rockefeller — a 40-year-old horse owned by Charles P. Rea and a familiar figure around town — passed away in the midst of haying season.

50 YEARS AGO

Commander Albert Cole Jr. promoted the Andover air-raid warning system to a stand-by basis following a meeting with local volunteers. As soon as the Massachusetts governor appointed a civil defense head, definite orders outlining the warning service would come from state headquarters.

Crowds of revelers thronged downtown streets for the "Night Before the Fourth," a pre-Independence Day celebration featuring a parade, band concert, carnival, bonfire, and — of course — fireworks.

A float designed by Pomp's Pond life-guards and showing a lifeboat floating in red, white and blue crepe-paper water took first prize in the "Night Before" parade.

25 YEARS AGO

Downtown Andover received a $2.5 million shot in the arm with the announcement of plans for a three-story, multiple use building that would sit diagonally across Main Street from Town Hall. Construction called for more than 100,000 square feet of retail shops on two levels, office space on the third level, and a parking garage in the rear lower level of the structure.

The School Committee established a sub-committee to study the possible implementation of a 4-4-4 grade scheme proposed by Superintendent Kenneth R. Seifert. Under a 4-4-4 restructuring plan, Doherty, South, Sanborn and Shawsheen Schools would house grades kindergarten through four, while Bancroft, West Elementary and East Junior High would function as middle schools for grades five through eight. Grades nine through 12 would attend Andover High and West Middle School.

Two parking lots overflowed as record-breaking crowds flocked to Legion Beach in North Andover during a mid-summer hot spell.

studio in there, and we know they want a gymnasium and a game room, to name a few," said Larry Larsen, foundation founder and former selectman. "We were looking for an architect that could help us decide what we wanted, and could take ideas that the young adults have and could articulate them."

The final plans will not be completed until after the land is secured, after the special town meeting, he added. "Right now we're working on the concept," he said.

In addition, the foundation is looking into providing transportation for kids from schools. Though West Fire Station was partly chosen because it is closer to Andover High School than other sites, such as Recreational Park, there is still a need to ensure kids get safely from school to their after-noon activities.

Approximately $2.5 million needs to be raised to make the center a reality, said Larsen, and it will be raised entirely as a private venture, rather than out of taxes.

"We will seek the monies entirely on our own," he said. "The center should truly be owned by the community."

The fundraising director is Tom Jones, founder and former CEO of Epsilon, a company that for 15 years was the largest annual-giving fundraising company in the country.

Construction probably will not begin until 2001, said Bob McQuade, foundation member and former public works director. Center completion is tentatively set for sometime in 2002.

Keeping the charm...

If selectmen stick by their vote to form a charter commission, and Andover considers changing its form of town government, there will be talk about whether Andover is really still a town, or a fledgling city.

Increasing traffic and a growing business sector already have some people believing Andover is a city.

Those who want change may argue that Town Meeting no longer works in a community of 30,000.

Or that trouble with recent construction projects shows the current form of government doesn't provide proper oversight.

All of these are debatable.

However, there is one way that Andover is unquestionably still a small town. It's in the way it handles annual community events.

Andover enlivens these events with small-town charm.

Take this week's Fourth of July festivities.

Flags lined Main Street, families packed the Horribles Parade and pancakes filled the stomach. For once, no one could argue that town officials weren't serving the people. There they were behind the grill, flipping pancakes and dishing out breakfast.

Such activities help to make a town — or a city — into a community.

Whatever growing pains the town is facing, and whatever medicine — if any — it needs to soothe them, that is one thing the town should not change. It's one of the things it does quite well.

Serving well

A good deal of credit for the success of town events like the Horribles Parade goes to the Department of Community Services.

And both community services and youth services will continue to provide popular programs throughout the summer. The recent sign-ups for both departments' summer programs drew large crowds.

"Four years ago I literally had to run out into the street and tell people about the programs," says Bill Fahey, youth services director.

That's not a problem anymore. Even in a big town like Andover, word of a good thing still gets around quickly.

Unlocking genetic code was on my to-do list

Jack Grady

It's awesome what we share, as a culture and as human beings. But in life, timing is everything.

And I was so close, too.

There were only a few things I absolutely had to do last week:

- Put the paper out.
- Pick up some of my shirts at the cleaners.
- Shop for a new car.
- And unlock the genetic code for human beings.

But maybe you saw, as of last week, the first human blueprints have now been completed. Two rival groups of researchers — one public, one all-about-profit — beat me to it. So I guess my part-time approach wasn't the best way to go, after all.

The researchers jointly announced that they've independently finished drafting a map of most of the human genome, the complete gene set.

And these 3.2 billion chemical letters of code, making up our DNA, use only four letters: G's, A's, T's and C's.

In my working draft, I even listed what the letters G, A, T and C stood for: GRADY ALWAYS TAKES COFFEE.

So now they'll probably get the Nobel Prize for Medicine, not to mention the free trip to Stockholm, Sweden.

Maybe that's the toughest part to swallow because, as I saw in college, there are a lot of blonde women in Stockholm.

Some things just come with the territory. That was one of the first things I learned about genetic research.

'I READ THE NEWS TODAY, OH BOY'

It was interesting to see how the human genome story was covered in the press.

One Boston daily called it "an achievement so profound that no metaphor seemed able to capture it."

The other chose not to feature the story on its front page, running the huge headline "Disgusting" with a story detailing the evidence against an alleged child molester, and with a banner story across the top about a proposed $10 scratch ticket to help finance a new Fenway Park.

The Andover Townsman didn't report the story because the DNA used in the study came from anonymous donors. Due to confidentiality, we couldn't verify that any of the DNA came from a local resident.

'T'VE GOT A BLACK MAGIC MARKER'

The two rival research groups completed their first drafts of the human genome map by way of different scientific techniques.

The private group used a "shot-gun" approach and supercomputers to do the sequencing.

The public Human Genome Project researchers also broke the chromosomes into chunks, sequenced the genes, then "knit" the chromosomes back together.

My method was a little more random than either of theirs — but no less accurate — using a Veg-O-Matic, a little music, a fair amount of free association, and a lot of intuition. And it was coming along just fine, thank you very much.

Just take a look at these DNA sequences... my gene location is followed by what actually lives there:

- 1000000000 — More Zippy; less Sally Forth.
- 1000000001 — I prefer stick shifts.
- 1000000002 — Light starch & hangers.
- 1000000003 — I love fried clams.
- 1000000004 — But they don't love me.
- 1000000005 — No mas Elian Gonzalez stories.

Bridge building needed between neighbors

Editor, Townsmen:

When Andover's local government, specifically the Department of Community Services, denies a bus permit to Pomp's Pond to the Greater Lawrence HeadStart's SummerStart program, it deprives both communities of a valuable opportunity.

As a member of the Unitarian Universalist Congregation in Andover (which helps sponsor this program) and a teacher in the Lawrence Public Schools, I support all bridging efforts between communities. It can only make for a richer experience for all of us here in the Merrimack Valley.

Don't Andover children attend the Lawrence boating program?

It's time for Andover to keep up the good work (as it has done over the years) in the spirit of community and access to nature for all, and not withdraw this permit.

Out with the insults

Editor, Townsmen:

This letter is in response to Mr. Buck's letter on June 22. I have two issues to address where his statements are concerned.

My first issue is concerning the incident with Mike Beliveau. As a member of the Class of 2000 at Andover High, I don't agree with what was done in the case of Mike Beliveau. But, whether I agree or not, I don't feel that his parents should be criticized for their feelings. They are probably having a hard time with what happened, and we shouldn't insult them by saying that they are "whining."

One thing I've noticed recently about the letters in the Townsmen is that they are full of insults and sarcasm towards other members of the community.

People are always complaining about how no one gets along in our town. It's always the kids against the adults, or the teenagers against the police.

Perhaps if the adults were not openly insulting to members of the community

Apology extended to AHS band

Editor, Townsmen:

On June 21, a letter of mine was published in the Andover Townsman about the high school senior not attending graduation but receiving a diploma. In the last paragraph I wrote: "One question, where was the Andover High School band on Memorial Day? No doubt they had more pressing educational duties to attend to. What a joke to the so called education junkies!"

Now it seems that the veterans director of the town of Andover and members of the Andover High School band have taken exception and pointed out that the Andover High School band did march in the Memorial Day parade and further did lead the parade.

As I am no longer able to march the parade, I was standing on the corner of Elm and Florence streets, which is a four-minute-at-the-most walk from 8 Summer St., and I still do not recall seeing the Andover High School band. So it seems that at that moment I was not paying attention.

Without any further ado, such being the case, then I do retract my three-line comment as concerns the Andover High School Marching Band. But as to the one highly indignant member of the band, I point out my sentence above as to where I was. As to Ms. Cohen, as far as the band is concerned, my retraction is evident, but, if her further remarks are a hidden attack on the rest of the letter, please be advised that I make no apology for the rest of my letter.

Kenneth T. Buck

with differing opinions, we would be teaching the kids in our community a better lesson. It's the point of the letters section to express your opinion on different matters, even if in disagreement. But I would think that in a community like ours, that could be done without hostility and insults.

My second issue to address is the comment Mr. Buck made about the Andover High School Marching Band. As a former member, and captain of the color guard, I would like to take it upon myself to clear up any misconceptions. Mr. Buck asked where we were on Memorial Day. I don't want to leave the impression that we were not there. In the morning, we were at Spring Grove cemetery. There, we witnessed two services in honor of veterans of all the wars our country's fought in. We played the national anthem, and two of our trumpeters played Taps. Then, we went to Doherty Middle School, where we lined up for the Memorial Day parade. After marching in the parade, we went back to Doherty to witness and take part in the ceremony there. Once again, two of our members played Taps for the assembled crowd in honor of our veterans. After that, we took a trip to Tewksbury to march in their Memorial Day parade.

That is where the marching band was this Memorial Day, and every other Memorial Day that I remember. I just wanted to set the record straight, because after a full day of representing our school and country, I wouldn't want it thought that we didn't care about this community.

Address history and future in one plan

Editor, Townsmen:

We are writing in regards to the article in the June 29 edition. "Needed church expansion spurs debated."

As members of West Parish Church who have publicly expressed opposition to the proposed changes that would cover a windowed section of the church building, we are encouraged to hear that others in the community have similar concerns.

In addition to being the oldest standing church in Andover, West Parish Church is recognized as one of Andover's most attractive buildings. We feel that there is a responsibility for the church community as well as the community at large to assure that the simple elegance of the church building is maintained for the enjoyment of future generations.

It is our sincere hope that a solution can be found that will fulfill the growing space needs of the church while taking into consideration the stewardship implicit in occupying such a significant structure.

Zero tolerance a zero, each situation different

Editor, Townsmen:

"Zero tolerance" is only as strong and effective as the people who enforce it. If they can pick when, who, and how it applies then all good intentions in the meaning behind the policy are lost.

It is also ineffective to punish us for the same things you did when you were younger. You learned from your mistakes, and so will we. We're not that different. People in glass houses should not throw stones. When a situation arises, it is in the best interest of all involved to treat each individual differently because we are not all the same.

Bunching every situation together and slapping on the same ridiculous sentence is not only lazy but can become sloppy as well. This is the truth behind what occurred in the last week before our graduation.

Several students participated in more serious infractions of your "zero-tolerance policy" and not only attended graduation, but were able to participate in the ceremony. Where is the fairness in that? Your policy does not provide all the answers because things aren't always black and white.

If there is a need to complain, then please make it constructive and offer some suggestions to fix the problems that have become blatantly obvious over that past few weeks. It is time for you to move on and stop criticizing the Beliveau family.

For those of you who want to believe Mike Beliveau is a bad kid who just got caught and doesn't want to accept the consequences, you are mistaken. In fact, the opposite of that is the truth. As a classmate and friend for the past four years, I can think of only kind words to describe Mike Beliveau. Being friendly, honest and hardworking, and never speaking ill of others, are only a few of the commendable traits Mike possesses. In addition, I would like to add bravery above all, not only for him, but for his parents as well. They have had to put up with the intolerant, narrow-minded opinions of those who wrote in. If you weren't a witness to the actual events, or you don't know Mike, you wrote based on secondary sources without having educated responses to substantiate your expressions.

Up until the past week, I was able to laugh at the ridiculous comments thrown out, but the letter written by Ms. Deborah Brown went too far. I hope that you realize that there were people on the receiving end of your letter who have feelings. Maybe now is a good time for you to learn a lesson that my parents taught me as a little girl; perhaps I take it for granted: if you don't have something nice to say, don't say anything at all.

Though I'm sure you have your reasons, none seem overly apparent why it was necessary to make it your goal to put down others. The intent of the Beliveau's and Mr. Coughlan's letters was not to offend you personally. I don't understand the need to publicly attack them for their opinions. Parking at AHS is a valid issue that needs to be addressed, not only for special events, but for the duration of the school year. You can ask both students and faculty and they can certainly attest to the magnitude of this issue.

Perhaps ignorance is bliss, but it also breeds hatred and outrage. Please learn to gather as much information as possible from more than one source, and don't base what you stand for on the opinions of others.

AHS teacher Lussier headed to DC as White House Fellow

By Dawn Shea

Andover High School history teacher David Lussier will have a front-row seat at history in the making this year. The Massachusetts Teacher of the Year 2000 will soon be off to Washington, D.C.

Lussier, 30, was recently appointed to the 2000-01 class of White House Fellows, a prestigious program that boasts such alumni as Colin Powell, Assistant Secretary of State Julia Taft and INS Commissioner Doris Meissner, to mention a few.

"It's a who's who list of people who have done amazing things," says Lussier, who has been teaching for eight years, the last six at Andover High.

Founded in 1964 by President Lyndon B. Johnson, the year-long White House Fellows program sought and continues to involve young people in the leadership of the nation by exposing them to top-level government officials. It also allows the fellows to travel anywhere in the world to investigate foreign policy, a prospect that excites Lussier.

"I have a feeling our class will go to the Middle East or Asia," he says.

Lussier and the other 14 fellows will report to Washington on Sept. 1 to work for a Cabinet member or senior White House official. The 10 men and five women will also welcome and acclimate the new administration when it reports to work in January 2001.

Two weeks ago, Lussier and the other fellows — six military officers and nine civilians, including an Air Force

B-1 Bomber pilot, a former Green Beret, a civil rights attorney, and a pediatric emergency physician — were flown to Washington to interview with current Cabinet members and White House officials.

David Lussier

Lussier interviewed with the Department of Education, the vice president's office, the Commerce Department, the Domestic Policy Council and the National Economic Council.

"I'm hoping to get the Domestic Policy Council," admits Lussier. "That would put me right in the White House."

The Domestic Policy Council works directly with the president, advising him on domestic policy. This direct and substantive impact on policy is what makes this council so appealing to Lussier, a Democrat who would like to see Vice President Al Gore remain in the White House.

I want to be immersed in (the policy-making) process," says Lussier.

Lussier, who will move to Washington with his wife and nine-month-old child, learned of the fellows program when he spotted a brief description of the program in the back of a teaching magazine. Intrigued, he logged on to the Web site they listed and began the application process.

"It was very intensive," he recalls, noting that it became even more grueling as the hundreds of applicants were dwindled down to the final 15. According to Lussier, one step involved a day-and-a-half of interviews. The next level of competition brought Lussier to Annapolis for an additional four days of tough interviews, in which the interview panel could ask anything. You didn't know what they were going to ask, he remembers.

"For me the toughest questions were the introspective ones," acknowledges Lussier, who was asked what he hates most about himself. "It came out of context," he recalls, noting that he and the panel were in the middle of an in-depth discussion about education.

Lussier credits a former fellow, retired General Wesley Clark, with asking some of the most probing questions, including ones on quantum mechanics and the work and theoretical intentions of Jared Diamond, the Pulitzer Prize-winning author of Guns, Germs and Steel: The Fates of Human Societies.

"I was reading the Times, The Economist and the Globe

About $400,000 raised since 1996, millions to go

Plans now in hand, seniors promise fundraising results

By Rebecca Piro

Some seniors have big plans in store for Phillips Academy's Williams Hall, the four-story building with peeling, yellowed paint and overgrown hedges at 53 Phillips St. But first, supporters of turning the dormitory into the town's next senior center need to raise the money to do so.

Details for the new senior center were unveiled Friday morning before an attentive crowd of seniors, many sporting T-shirts with a red artist's rendition of the future center. There was not an empty chair in the room while building committee Chairman Spencer Johnson pointed to several bird's-eye views of the refinished hall. By May of 2001, a total of $4.2 million will have been raised to pay for it all, promised Doreen Correnti, president of the Friends of Andover Seniors fundraising organization.

So far, the center has raised about $400,000 since the inception of the project about four years ago. Town Meeting 1997 allocated another $500,000 as "seed money" for the project.

That leaves about $3.3 million yet to be raised. As Director of Elder Services Jeanne Madden said, the seniors still have "a long way to go."

According to the lease with PA, the Friends have until July 1, 2001 to raise the entire amount.

In terms of major reconstruction, the four-story building does not require extensive work, Madden said. The Council on Aging is particularly happy, she added, that the building will retain its historical integrity.

"There will be very little change," she said. "It will allow us to keep the beautiful historic flavor of the house."

When seniors finally make the transition into the new, refinished building on PA campus, the extra room will be a welcome change. An addition to the rear of the building will provide a kitchen and serving area. Overall, the added space will let seniors spread out for activities and provide a permanent home for materials and equipment.

Parking lots will have space for over 100 cars, including 13 handicapped spots. Currently, the senior center has a total of only 10 designated spaces.

In addition, there will be a library room, rather than just the present hallway with a few bookshelves.

"We're very excited about the way

Promised land — The Friends of Andover Seniors will try to raise the more than $3 million still needed to turn Phillips Academy's Williams Hall (above) into a senior center the town will lease for 30 years. After 30 years, the building could return to Phillips Academy's control.

Selectmen chairman: Charter commission not a primary need me that maybe there's not that much interest in it," Hess said.

However, Larsen, who was on the board when the vote was taken, says that most of those details had already been ironed out with the initial vote.

"(The charter review) was a goal set last year," he said. "It should by now have been in effect. The motion was to set it up right away and have it last for two years."

Though Major will support the board's decision to open the charter — something that has not been done since the town-manager form of government was established in the 1950s — he does not consider a review something of primary need in relation to several other projects the town already has before it, such as the new schools, the public safety center and the sewer project.

"I am not a strong advocate of it," he said. "I'm not sold that that's in the best interest of Andover. I think we already have way too much on our plate."

Nor does Major speculate that the townspeople would agree to a change in the town's format of government. Town meeting is unique, he added, in that every registered voter essentially can stand up and voice their opinion. "We have about 31,000 people in the community, and over 19,000 are registered voters," Major said. "In actuality, all 19,000 can have a say, and my vote is no more important than anyone else's. We're all equal."

"I like the town-meeting form of government. I like that any registered voter can speak their mind," Major said. "It's a very rare form of government now," he added, and Andover's is the largest in New England.

Hess says he also believes the public is content with the town government as it is. "People like being able to talk at town meeting, and they don't want to give that up," he said.

But a charter review does not necessarily mean completely overhauling the town-meeting format, admitted Hess. If the public was against changing the town government, then a review could be helpful in adjusting town meeting itself, making it easier for more people to be heard more easily.

But the outcome of a review is not the point, said Larsen. As years go by, every institution is warranted to check up on itself.

"I think that all institutions should study themselves every quarter century, and it's been about a half century (for Andover)," Larsen said. "The point is to see if we're doing the best job governing ourselves as possible. I believe Andover has changed. It's not the same place as it was 30 years ago."

Selectmen Lori Becker was also in support of the review at voting time.

If the town does undertake a charter review, Hess projects a two-year process that would begin sometime in the fall.

A commission would meet to come up with questions as a whole, and then in the springtime, present their research and get feedback from the public. The next step would be to bring any findings and proposals to the 2001 Town Meeting.

Construction projects are the priority in goal setting

By Rebecca Piro

Meet the new goals, same as the old goals.

That's the message from at least two selectmen, who say the town's top goals for the upcoming fiscal year must continue to revolve around the sewers, schools, and public-safety construction projects approved during the past two years.

Selectmen will begin setting their goals for fiscal year 2001 in earnest at their next meeting, July 10.

"We need to make sure that the projects we are starting happen in a timely fashion and without cost overruns," said Selectman John Hess.

"We have huge projects that are on the table," said Selectmen Chairman Brian Major. "We just approved $32 million in schools, $30 million in sewer, and $13 million in a public safety center. That's nearly $75 million in projects. That's a lot of money."

Because of this, selectmen must carefully monitor the next several years' budgets, he said.

"We need to have a strong understanding of our expenses that are committed already," Major said. "We've got to be very conservative with how we look at our budget over the next couple of years, and we've got to try not to overburden the taxpayers."

About a month ago, selectmen sat down together to brainstorm what they most want to see happen this year, said Major. The July 10 meeting will start at 6:30 p.m. just to sift through those ideas and set some priorities at what they call the annual goal-setting workshop. The board's plan is to have a list of goals set in stone by Aug. 31.

"What we want to do is understand the pulse of our community, and what is really the best thing for (it)," Major said.

While there are many things the selectmen would like to see happen within the next year, that wish list needs to be looked at real-

Seniors positive about fundraising the whole building works," said Johnson. "There's a lot of flexibility that we'll enjoy, and it's about three times the size of what we have now."

Right now, the hopes of Andover seniors and the elaborate plans are depending on multiple fundraising efforts that Madden says are on track with the town's time schedule. Though only about $400,000 has been raised since efforts began in '96, she says that is not a sign that things are moving slowly. Rather, she says that money raised under past conditions shows a laudable effort.

"The Friends started trying to raise the money even though they didn't have the plans, and they were able to raise almost half a million dollars. That is no small feat," she said.

Now that the architectural plans are finalized, she considers this the official start of the fundraising campaign. "Now we're at the beginning of the fundraising," she said. "Anything before I would call pre-campaign work."

The latest fundraising kick-off will be made official with a volunteer recognition dinner in October, said Correnti.

The Friends are continuing with private solicitations, and there is a T-shirt campaign, where supporters can purchase white shirts displaying a red print of the proposed center. For $100, the public can also buy a brick for the new center's rear walkway. The brick can be engraved.

To direct these and future fundraising efforts, the center is in the process of hiring a new fundraising director, who it hopes to have on board this month.

The contract with previous director Ken Parsons ran out in February.

Besides fundraising, the center is applying for several state grants, such as a community-development block grant for low- to moderate-income elders that could amount to as much as $600,000.

Another $30,000 to $100,000 could be gained from a state preservation commission fund, due to William Hall's historical significance. Madden says she also will keep her eyes open for other sources of aid.

The May 2001 goal is a realistic one, said Correnti. "I think (the goal) is more tangible," she said, "because we actually now do have a site. Before we were campaigning for an idea."

In addition, Correnti added, the slowness of public response to the campaign thus far was due to confusion revolving around the town's public/private venture.

"This is the first time that we've ever done a public/private venture, and there have been kinks we've needed to iron out," she said, such as misunderstanding about the Friends' role and responsibilities.

"A lot of people were under the misunderstanding that the Friends would oversee the building of the center and operations, when in fact, the Friends were incorporated to raise money to let the town do what they usually do — oversee construction, operating issues, and staffing. All those things are the town's responsibility."

Now that all the arrangements are settled, Correnti is confident that the money will materialize in time for the May deadline.

"I believe it is attainable," she said. "I have always felt positive about it."

Many seniors shared her sentiments after Friday's informational forum.

Joyce Johnson, Beatrice Morreo, and Rosemary Hempstead all agreed that the project seems to be progressing. The present building is just not adequate for the needs of the active senior center, they said.

"Andover is a little bit behind the times when it comes to seniors," said Correnti. "What we provide is excellent, but we need more of it."

Goals: Is charter commission one?

Major said.

"You try to make the goals smart — specific, measurable, achievable, realistic, and time-oriented," he said.

Part of managing the projects is keeping the town well-informed on the development of each individual endeavor, he said. Some residents have complained about receiving too little information in the past.

"I feel strongly about regular monthly updates on each of our major projects," Major said. Such updates would let the public know about delays, work progress, financial effects and whether a particular project has run into the red.

Hess would also like to see a more regular, public recognition of town volunteers.

Major expressed a desire to see the town purchase properties to add to its conservation fund with $2.5 million recently approved by the town. A lack of playing fields for town youths should also be addressed, he said.

The goal-setting process has not always been as strong as it could have been, said Major, but he attributes any weaknesses to the fact that the board has had a 100-percent turnover within the past three years. But projects such as the new sidewalk construction plan, which Major promised would be finished this year, are proof that some goals really do see fruition.

A charter review, which selectmen voted to go forward with last February, will be reconsidered with this year's goals, and could be underway this fall.

Bandemonium! Summer music festival heats up the Park

By Jeremy Adams

Looking to recapture the smiles and sparks of July 4 celebrations? Perhaps a few fireworks of the musical variety will provide the pop you crave.

The annual Family Music Festival kicked off yesterday evening (after Townsmen presstime) with a concert of marches and medleys, the first show in a summer-long series of weekly performances at the Park Bandstand. After 25 years of rock-around-the-block, the event still provides wholesome entertainment for big, small, new and — last but not least — old attendees.

"It's nice to see that we have a lot of repeat customers," says Mary Donohue, co-director of the Department of Community Services (DCS) and coordinator of the festival.

The free program brings a different artist to the stage every Wednesday night at 6 for a sock-hopping set of feel-good, summertime tunes. And although the musicians aim to please, it's the social atmosphere of the concerts that keeps audience members coming back time and time again.

"It's a nice way to meet other Andover residents," says Donohue. "It's kind of nice to see a mix of people socializing."

The 2000 Family Music Festival lineup offers a simmering blend of eclecticism, with everything from jazz quartets to swing revival groups scheduled to perform. Even the Yankee Strummers — a traditional band comprised almost entirely of banjo players — will attempt to charm park spectators with their unique sound.

"We're doing this to promote the banjo," says Linda Jaynes, a Hollis, N.H., native and a member of the Strummers. "We feel it's the American instrument."

Regardless of whether they tap their feet to banjo plucks, attendees should bring picnic supplies, blankets, frisbees, pets, bug spray and — most importantly — a fun attitude.

"Plan to have a good time," says Donohue.

In the event of rain delays,

▲ Rico Barr and the Jumpin' Jive Review play next Wednesday, July 12. The Yankee Strummers play Aug. 2. ▼ concerts will take place on Thursday instead Wednesday, she says. Call 623-8279 after 3 p.m. on the day of a performance to find out if such a delay will occur.

Family Music Festival set for the Park Bandstand

The Family Music Festival, sponsored by the Department of Community Services, begins Wednesday, July 5, at 6 p.m. at the Park Bandstand. If it rains, concerts will be held Thursdays, rain or shine. If it rains on the rain date, the concerts will be held in Memorial Auditorium, next to the Park.

Here is the complete schedule:

July 5: Festival Brass Quintet (marches and medleys)
July 12: Rico Barr and the Jumpin' Jive Review (swing)
July 19: Four Guys in Tuxes (requests)
July 26: '60s Invasion (favorites from the '60s)
Aug. 2: Yankee Strummers (banjo)
Aug. 9: Windham Community Band (show tunes)
Aug. 16: Marl Karl Orchestra (big band)
Aug. 23: Mike Finegold Quartet (jazz, Latin)

For more information, call Mary Donohue at 623-8200.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D., F.A.G.D.

YOUR SMILE

Patients often have a pure white "Hollywood smile" in mind when considering a cosmetic whitening procedure. The dentist, however, makes aesthetic decisions based on the size of the teeth in relation to those surrounding them, their surface texture, contour, shape, and color. Where color is concerned, people often have the misperception that teeth are all white. In actuality, they are also comprised of yellows, blues, grays, greens, and oranges. Thus, unless a patient has his or her heart set on a career in the movies, lighter teeth that mimic enamel's subtle range of hues would be a better choice than pure white teeth. And, veneering material must be given texture if it is to avoid the look of artificiality.

In addition to changing the way other people see you, whitening and other methods of cosmetic dentistry can greatly improve the way you see yourself. Thanks to procedures like whitening, veneers, and contouring, you can have the smile you've always wanted. At our office, we treat people, not just teeth. We will use all our skills, knowledge, and experience to design a treatment plan that exactly suits your needs and lifestyle. For an appointment, please call us at 475-2431, at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93.

P.S. Bonding may be utilized to close spaces between teeth, cover stains, and repair chips.

Buls brings state forest to life

It grows on you

By Judy Wakefield

Just five minutes from noisy Route 114, you can find Barbara Buls breathing a sigh of relief as she parks her car and starts her day.

The birds are singing, the sun is shining and that's enough to make her smile as she opens the guard shack at the Harold Parker State Forest campground.

Buls, the woman responsible for introducing residents to the state forest, checks on a fish tank that houses fish retrieved from a nearby pond.

On this particular morning, she has a colorful dragonfly perched on her index finger when she stops in mid-sentence and looks toward the sky. She hears the sounds made by her favorite broad-wing hawk, which she believes is nesting nearby.

She then checks on the wildflower garden, designed by a troop of Girl Scouts to attract butterflies and hummingbirds. She also checks on the milkweed just planted in her butterfly house and it gets her nod of approval. She hopes to raise monarchs, the type of butterfly that lives in the forest.

A camper stops her with a recycling question and then she's back to the beauty of the forest.

"If you told me 10 years ago that I would be here, in New England, I would have said you were crazy," said the Midwestern native, who graduated from Montana State University with a degree in fishing and wildlife management. "I always thought of those six states up there in the corner of the map as too crowded for me."

But after years of working on commercial fishing boats, a stint studying mountain goats and six years teaching English while living in Japan, it was time for this restless soul to settle down. She eventually enrolled in a master's degree program at the University of New Hampshire, fell in love and now calls this area home.

"I love it now," she said. "I find this area fascinating and I am learning something all the time."

Sitting at a picnic table in the campground surrounded by hickory and oak trees, she spoke about her job as "interpreter" at Harold Parker, a position she's held for the past three summer seasons. She works full-time from April to October.

"Interpreter" is a term coined by the National Park system, she said, because the system's territory is so vast and diverse.

"The National Park system covers cultural urban sites to sites in the woods. It is so diverse. They use the word interpreter, which means I interpret what's around me," she explained.

In Buls's case, that means a 3,500-acre state park that straddles four towns — Andover, North Andover, Middleton and North Reading.

The park has 11 ponds, a 91-site campground, and trails for hiking and biking.

As large it is, Buls admits that few people living in those towns have ever visited the park, one of the largest in the Massachusetts State Forests and Parks system.

"I am trying to branch out and let people know about this place. People tell me that they don't know about the park. I hear that a lot," she said.

As a result of those comments, Buls has organized a handful of summer events that she hopes will attract newcomers. One of the first, a "Birds of Prey" presentation that featured a bird handler who brought a hawk, a falcon and other birds, attracted 170 people on a recent Saturday afternoon.

Activities coming up at Harold Parker State Forest

► Nature walks: Every Wednesday and Saturday, 9 a.m., meet at park headquarters.

► Star program: Wednesday, Aug. 2, 9 p.m., meet at headquarters.

► Fishing Festival: Saturday, Aug. 19, 9 a.m., Sudden Pond, sponsored by the Mass. Angler Education program.

► Fall Festival: Saturday, Sept. 16, second annual craft fair, featuring traditional crafts, Berry Pond.

► Art installation: Saturday, Sept. 30, presented by Montserrat College of Art, Berry Pond.

For more information, call Barbara Buls, 475-7972.

Buls also guides nature walks every Wednesday and Saturday at 9 a.m., and a stargazing program is set for Aug. 2.

The 13th annual Harold Parker Fishing Festival is Aug. 19, while a traditional craft fair is set for Sept. 16. There is also an art show taking place Sept. 30 featuring works by students of Montserrat College in Beverly.

"We're more than a section of forest," said Buls. "My goal is to provide the public with interesting events because this is public property."

Buls says she wants people to take a break from the traffic on Route 114, and check out the tracks of land set aside in Harold Parker.

"Just come out and listen to the birds sing," she says. "It's a wonderful environment."

Nelson names Ryan as one of "World's Best"

Ryan Financial Advisors of Andover was recently recognized for its investment performance by being named to Nelson's "World's Best Money Managers."

Nelson Investment Manager Database, the largest investment-performance ranking service in the world, selected Ryan Financial for this honor because of its asset allocation performance returns. For the most recent five-year period, Ryan placed in the top 15 percent of asset-allocation portfolios in the Nelson peer group. Not only was Ryan named for the five-year period, it also qualified by virtue of its strong returns for the first quarter of 2000, the past four quarters, and the last 12 quarters, says a release from the company.

"We are very proud to receive this recognition by Nelson," William T. Ryan, Ryan Financial's president, said in a release.

"Most local investment firms do not choose to submit their results for evaluation," said Ryan. "We believe that clients should know the batting average of their financial advisor, and how that stacks up with others."

Ryan Financial manages over $130 million for 250 families, trusts and companies.

Tech companies encouraged to apply SBA to give M-O-N-E-Y for R&D

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) is now accepting nominations for the annual Tibbetts Award, the agency's highest national technology recognition. Tibbetts Awards are made to individuals, small businesses and organizations involved with federal research and development through the SBA's Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) Program.

"Each year, this agency has the distinction of presenting the Tibbetts Award to some of the most creative and innovative small businesses in the nation," said Elaine F. Guiney, Massachusetts SBA Director.

"Last year Microwave

Medical Systems, Inc. of Acton won the Tibbetts Award," she said. "Microwave Medical Systems secured SBIR funding for 16 separate projects. One of their awards was for a breakthrough blood warming system now used by trauma teams and physicians around the country."

The SBIR program accounts for more than $1 billion per year in federal R&D funds and is coordinated by the SBA in cooperation with 10 other federal agencies.

Details on the program and the award nomination process are available on the SBA's home page at <<http://www.sba.gov/sbir>>.

Nomination packages are due by July 14.

Selection for Tibbetts Awards are based on several factors, including the economic impact of the technological innovation, overall business achievement and demonstration of effective collaborations, says a release from the SBA.

The SBA's awards, named for Roland Tibbett, the man who spearheaded creation of the SBIR program, last year were made to companies and individuals from almost every state in the nation.

This year's presentation will take place in Washington, D.C. on Oct. 3.

Amore Hearing Consultants

Amore Hearing Consultants have been serving the needs of the hearing impaired for more than 45 years. They are dedicated to educating the public on how to preserve their hearing loss and how to cope with hearing loss.

Ms. Amore often is asked about the real price of hearing aids. She likes to respond with a short story. The original author is unknown to her.

"How much did your new hearing aids cost?" inquired a friend. "Well, said the new hearing aid user as he drew in a deep breath, "they cost me three friendships that I know of, a strained relationship with my wife, two grandchildren who think I don't love them, early retirement without the gold watch and going away party, eons of boredom in church, and lost interest in bingo, dances, and get-togethers." After a reflective pause, he added, "Oh yes, I only spent sixteen hundred dollars when I got the hearing aids. The rest I spent before I got them!"

Without question, Ms. Amore encourages anyone who may suspect they are a candidate for a hearing aid, to schedule an appointment for a free hearing test and consultation with Amore Hearing Consultants.

Americans, Nationals off to quick start in LL tournament

By Rick Harrison

Both Andover entries in the Major 11-12 year old division of the double-elimination District 14 Little League All-Star Tournament are off to fast and impressive starts.

The Andover Americans, defending district champs, had back-to-back no-hitters on the way to resounding victories over South Lawrence East, 15-0, and Haverhill American, 9-0.

The two triumphs extended the Americans' District 14 win streak to seven straight games stretching back to last summer.

The Andover Nationals opened with a dramatic come-from-behind 6-3 win over Chelmsford Lupien, as pitcher Mike Fortier escaped a bases-loaded, no-out jam in the top of the sixth and Greg Carroll belted a game-winning three-run homer in the bottom of the final inning.

The two Major 11-12 teams return to tourney action tonight (Thursday) with winner's bracket quarterfinals, Andover American versus Lowell Highland (1-0) under the lights at the Bailey School in Lowell (7:30 p.m.).

and Andover National hosting South Lawrence West (1-0) at Deyermund Field (5:45).

Lowell Highland edged Billerica National, 3-2, in its opener while SLW nipped Tewksbury American by the same 3-2 score.

If both Andover teams win tonight they will square off against one another a week from tomorrow, July 14, in a winner's bracket semifinal at Deyermund Field.

The Andover Senior 14-16 year old All-Star team also opened District 14 Tournament play with a victory, belting Methuen West 'B' by a 13-3 score at the Andover High junior varsity field.

That triumph put Andover up against defending district champ Tewksbury National last night, after Townsman presstime, in a winner's bracket quarterfinal.

The Andover Junior 13-14 team dug a hole when it lost to Billerica American A at Andover High in its first game.

The locals will attempt to climb out of the loser's bracket beginning tomorrow night with a game against the loser of last night's game between Chelmsford Lupien and Tewksbury American.

The Andover Juniors now have to win seven straight games to capture the district title.

MAJOR 11-12 DIVISION

Andover American 15 South Lawrence East 0

Righthanders Chris Browne and Paul Malaguti combined to pitch the Americans' first no-hitter, while All-Star veteran Andrew Hennessey drove in five runs with a home run and double, as the Americans opened the tournament with this lopsided romp under the lights at Deyermund Field.

The game was called after four innings by the mercy rule.

Brown (1-0) pitched the first three innings, striking out four and walking two, while Malaguti closed the game by fanning the three SLE batters he faced in the fourth.

The Americans, with three players from the 1999 team that won the District 14 title and reached the four-team Massachusetts State Tournament, scored four runs in the first inning, six in the second, three in the third and two in the fourth.

Andrew Hennessey belted a long two-run homer off the snack shack beyond the fence in right-centerfield in the first inning. Bobby Hughes later ripped a two-run single to center field for a 4-0 lead.

In the six-run second Hennessey belted a two-run double, Dan McDonnell had an RBI infield out, and four walks kept the rally going.

Malaguti's two-run single was the key stroke in the third.

Joe Benedix and Zach O'Donnell laced back-to-back singles in the fourth, and the runs crossed on Hennessey's fielder's choice and when Browne's grounder to third was booted.

Hennessey and leadoff batter O'Donnell led the attack, each with two hits and three runs scored.

Malaguti, who began the game at third base, led the Andover defense by starting a 5-3 double play.

Andover American 9 Haverhill American 0

Righthander Nick Caro (1-0) shackled Haverhill with a complete-game no-hitter in the first round game at Riverside Park in Haverhill.

Caro, who faced only 20 batters (two over the minimum), struck out six, walked three and threw only 71 pitches.

He helped his own cause with a two-run homer, an RBI single and two outstanding defensive plays to preserve the no-hitter.

Paul Malaguti was also instrumental in the victory, going 4-for-4 with two homers, four RBI and a quick stab of a line drive at third to start the team's second double play in two games.

Lefty swinger Malaguti gave Andover a 1-0 lead in the second inning with a bases-empty home run to right field.

Chris Browne doubled and rode home on Caro's two-run homer to right-center in the third.

The lead doubled to 6-0 in the fifth after Browne reached on a two-base error. Caro lashed an RBI single and Malaguti launched a two-run homer to right field.

The final three runs came across in the sixth. Joe Benedix walked, Zach O'Donnell and Browne reached on consecutive Haverhill errors to plate Benedix, Andrew Hennessey's infield out rescued Browne and Malaguti drilled a run-scoring single.

Caro's two key defensive plays both came on bunt attempts, including a third-inning beauty where he barehanded the ball and nipped Haverhill's Chris Sheehy at first base.

Malaguti's second 5-3 twin-killing of the tournament was in the fourth, when he stabbed Robby Davis' liner and threw to Lenny Kublin to double a runner off first base by a half-step.

Malaguti finished 4-for-4, Caro was 2-for-3 and Browne scored three runs.

Andover National 6 Chelmsford Lupien 3

Greg Carroll's clutch three-run homer in the bottom of the sixth broke a 3-3 tie, as the Nationals defeated a traditionally-tough opponent in Lupien at Scully Field in Chelmsford.

Carroll's one-out blast, which sailed over the left field fence, followed a single to left by Eric Champion, walk to Austin Gilbert and sacrifice bunt by Mike Fortier.

Hard-throwing righty pitcher Fortier (1-0) earned the win with a complete-game eight-hitter. He whiffed eight, walked three and only two of the Chelmsford runs were earned.

Trailing 3-0 in the fourth (Andover home team by coin flip), the Nationals rallied to tie while lacing five of their 11 hits.

Mike Bruno and Mike Burbank ripped consecutive singles, and Patrick Tonelli's fielder's choice grounder left runners at the corners.

Dan Vining put the locals on the board with an RBI single to right-center. Champion singled, Tonelli scored on a passed ball, and Gilbert lashed an RBI single for a 3-3 deadlock.

Lupien left the bases loaded in both the third and sixth innings.

Fortier escaped the no-out jam in the sixth with two forceouts at the plate, shortstop Carroll and Fortier making the plays, and a strikeout.

Carroll finished the game 3-for-3 with a near-cycle single, double and homer, while Gilbert and Champion were both 2-for-2.

SENIOR 14-16 DIVISION

Andover 13 Methuen West 'B' 3

Righthander Mike Lanciani (1-0) pitched a complete-game four-hitter, fanning six and walking four, as Andover rolled in a first round battle stopped after six innings by the 10-run mercy rule.

The locals erased a 1-0 deficit with four runs in the bottom of the first. Chris Travers walked, Matt Foresta singled, Chris Craig-Comin laced an RBI single, catcher Sean O'Day belted a two-run triple to left-center, and Lanciani helped his cause with a run-scoring single.

The lead jumped to 8-1 after a four-run fourth. Mike Zuill, Mike Bouchard and Travers walked, Zuill scored on a wild pitch, Matt Waisnor slapped an RBI single and Foresta followed with a two-run single.

After Methuen scored twice in the top of the sixth, Andover brought the game to an early end with a five-run rally in the bottom of the inning.

Singles by Travers, Waisnor, Foresta (RBI) and Larry Masse (RBI) preceded a long three-run homer to right-center by Lanciani.

Foresta sparked the 13-hit attack with three safeties and three RBI, while Lanciani finished with a pair of hits and four RBI.

O'Day had two hits and two ribbies, Waisnor two hits and Travers scored three runs.

Kevin Hoehn lashed a double and single for Methuen.

JUNIOR 13-14 DIVISION

Billerica American 'A' 22 Andover 5

The visitors scored four runs in the first inning and broke the game open with a 10-run outburst in the second.

Matt Saia struck the biggest blow for Andover with a two-run double, while Dan Murphy and Nick Salois had a single each.

The top offensive guns for Billerica were Bill Shaw (5-for-5), leadoff batter Pat Abrahamson (4-for-4, five runs scored) and Scott Wiggins (four hits).

A first for Andover soccer

The U-12 Division I Andover Attack took first place at the Massachusetts Tournament of Champions, to take the state title at UMass Amherst on Monday, June 26.

Team spokesmen say there has never been an Andover Soccer Association boys team that has won a state championship. That includes AHS boys soccer coach Dave Amundsen, who started the youth soccer program in Andover nearly 30 years ago. There have been several girls state champions, but not boys.

The Attack defeated North Andover in the semifinals of the Essex County Play-offs and then avenged their only league loss this year by romping over Danvers, 5-0, in the finals to take the Essex County Championship on Sunday, June 18.

Then it was off to UMass where, on Saturday, Andover defeated South Coast League champs, and previously undefeated, Kingston by a score of 6-0. Later that day the Attack fought off a strong challenge by Coastal League champs, Sandwich, and took a 1-0 decision.

Andover finished pool play on Sunday morning with a convincing 8-0 win over Dalton. The Attack lead by forwards Joey Savoca, Jason Sheldon, Stephen Twomey, Michael Galiburda, and Greg Levis had now outscored their opponents 15-0. That set the stage for a semi-final match in the Sunday afternoon heat, where the Attack had to face a strong Northboro team that had defeated perennial boys powers Woburn, Weymouth and Ludlow, to reach the semis.

It was apparent from the opening whistle that Northboro had never faced an opponent like Andover. The mid-field of Pumi Maqubela, Matt Wacks, Doug LaRose, Colin Hutzler, Sam Ball, Mike McKenzie, and Adam Rousmaniere lead an attack that carved up their opponents with precise passing to give Andover a big possession advantage. Late in the first half Rousmaniere took a free kick and put it 30 yards on to the right foot of a streaking Jason Sheldon, who beat a defender and the goalkeeper to put Andover ahead 1-0 for good.

In the finals on Monday, Andover would again face a tough Sandwich team, which had made it through as the lone wild card and had defeated a sg Webster team that had to overcome strong challenges from Dracut, Newton and Lenox in pool play.

The Attack created several chances in the first half and finally converted when Sheldon made a beautiful cross from the right wing which Stephen been incredible, and he, along with backs Max Ball, Tyler Hyslep, Mike Baldwin, David Rountree and Jon Gurry, lead an Andover defensive effort that did not allow an opponent to score in the normal course of play for the entire tournament.

Tied 1-1 at the end of regulation, the game went into two 10-minute overtime periods. The intensity of the game now went to another level. Savoca and Levis were creating havoc up front and Savoca nearly scored missing a tremendous shot by inches. But after the end of the first overtime the teams were still tied. Then, shortly into the second overtime, Doug LaRose fought off a defender to win a ball at the top of the box, he promptly served a perfect ball on the ground to Twomey, who one-timed it past the keeper and just under the cross bar.

Andover now had to hang on for seven minutes to take home the title. Gurry now moved up from his sweeper position and with Rousmaniere and Baldwin covering, he took over the game and never allowed Sandwich's big player, LeBeau, to get forward.

The Attack finished the Spring season with an 18-2-0 record, with 80 goals for and 18 against. In two years their combined record is 45 wins, 7 losses and 4 ties with 189 goals for and 50 against. Against premier clubs they are 7-3-1. They have distinguished themselves as the first Andover Soccer, Boys State Champions, but more important than that is the universal respect that they have earned throughout the state as a team that plays with honor, courage and beautiful style.

Post 8 posts 7-1 record after several big wins

By Rick Harrison

Trailing by a run and down to its final strike, the Andover Post 8 American Legion baseball team rallied to score four runs in the top of the seventh inning and pull out a wild 11-8 Essex County Zone 8 win over host Swampscott in recent action at Phillips Park.

Cushing Academy athlete Bob Mazza drove in the tying and winning runs with a single, while Chris Caverly provided the insurance with a two-run triple.

Reliever Jeff Volinski then blew the Mariners away in the bottom of the seventh, striking out the side to save the win for Mark Matos, as Andover highlighted another busy week.

Post 8, now 7-1 overall, also handed previously undefeated Lynn Gautreau a 12-4 loss. Revere Post 61 its first loss of the season, 10-5, and shackled Methuen Post 122 by a 7-1 score.

Andover went into last night's game (after Townsmen presstime) against Zone 8 foe Lynn Post 6 tied for first in the standings. Gautreau is 8-1. Revere 7-1 and Andover 7-1.

A recent game at Cooney Field in Beverly was postponed by rain and lightning.

"We drove to Beverly, took pregame batting practice and exchanged lineups," said Post 8 head coach Joe Iarrobino. "Just as our leadoff hitter, Danny Hughes, stepped into the batter's box a big bolt of lightning flashed and they cleared the field."

"We sat in our cars for a half hour while it poured, and when it stopped the field was unplayable."

No new date has yet been announced for the game.

Schedule

Andover returned to action last night against Lynn Post 6, and tonight Post 8 hosts Newburyport at Peter Aumais Park (6 p.m.).

Saturday evening the locals play Salem (Ma.) at Palmer's Cove (4:30 p.m.), while Sunday Middleton is at Aumais Park (5 p.m.).

Andover 11

Swampscott 8

Post 8 spotted Swampscott, winner of two state titles in recent years, to a 4-0 first-inning lead and trailed 8-7 entering the seventh.

Josh Topp launched the pivotal game-winning rally with a single to left-center, but he was subsequently thrown out trying to steal.

Dave Powers then walked, Sean Lawton doubled to right and Andy Salini was hit by a pitch to load the bases.

A shallow fly ball to right field resulted in the second out, with all three runners forced to hold their base.

Bob Mazza, an Andover resident and catcher for Cushing Academy in Ashburnham this past spring, ran the count to 2-2 before drilling his clutch two-run single to left-center for a 9-8 Andover lead.

Chris Caverly then laced a two-run triple down the right field line to rescue Salini and Mazza with the final two runs.

Jeff Volinski earned his first save by fanning the side in the home seventh, the first batter looking and the last two swinging.

Mark Matos (1-0), who relieved starter Rich Sheldon in the first, pitched 5 1/3 innings and allowed five hits and two earned runs for the win.

Volinski started the Post 8 comeback from the 4-0 deficit with a two-out solo home run (second of season) to right-center in the top of the second.

With two outs in the third, Lawton drilled a two-run double to left-center after Topp and Powers singled and worked a double steal.

Andover took a 6-4 lead with three runs in the fifth.

The uprising started when leadoff batter Danny Hughes was hit in the right elbow with a pitch. The elbow swelled and Hughes left the game after the inning because he couldn't swing a bat.

Kevin Shepard sliced an opposite-field single to left, sending Hughes to third, and he scored on Topp's sacrifice fly to make it 4-4.

Powers ripped an RBI triple to left-center to put Post 8 in front for the first time, and he scored on Lawton's slowly-stroked infield out.

Swampscott came back with four runs in the bottom of the fifth, taking advantage of an Andover error to regain an 8-6 lead.

Shepard drilled an RBI single to center in the sixth, scoring Mazza who laced a one-out single and advanced on an error.

That set up the dramatic seventh.

Shepard, Topp, Powers, Lawton and Mazza sparked the 13-hit Andover attack with two safeties each, while Lawton had three RBI and Powers scored three runs.

"It was a marathon game but a good one to win," said Post 8 head coach Joe Iarrobino. "Matos and Volinski did an excellent job on the mound — and the kids came through with their backs to the wall in the last inning."

Andover 10

Revere 5

Previously-undefeated Revere Post 61, which entered this game with a 7-0 record and boasted three college freshmen on its roster, took an early 3-0 lead before Andover rallied for two runs in the bottom of the third, five in the fourth and three in the fifth at Peter Aumais Park.

Andy Salini (1-0), a 16-year-old left-hander who pitched for Phillips Academy this past spring, earned the victory with five innings of five-hit work.

He struck out seven, walked two, and did not receive the best defensive support as four of Revere's five runs were unearned.

"Andy had a little trouble in the first couple innings," said Iarrobino. "He was consistently behind in the count. He settled down, but I had to take him out after five innings because he had thrown 99 pitches."

Big righthander Paul Wysocki mopped up with two innings of one-

Owner Richard Geraci

Bay-4 Motorsports

Summer is the time for outdoor fun and Bay-4 Motorsports is a good place to look for recreational vehicles. Whether you want a new or used motorcycle for touring or exploring the back roads, a Go-ped or Mosquito scooter for getting around the Cape, an ATV for off-road fun, or a 3-person Sea-doo for the water, owner Richard Geraci has something in stock at an excellent price. If you are the type that thinks ahead, he also has snowmobiles. For nearly four years, Rick has been buying, selling, and trading these vehicles. He will be able to help you find the most suitable one for your needs, fully informing you about the pluses and minuses of each product. He strongly believes it is important to sell a customer the right vehicle, rather than the most expensive one.

When you buy a sport vehicle, Rick advises you to look down the road to the time when you will be needing parts and service. Customers of Bay-4 Motorsports don't have to worry about where they will find someone to take care of them when they need parts, repairs or service. Whether you buy from him or already own a vehicle, you can feel secure that his shop will provide quality service.

Bay-4 Motorsports is also an official Massachusetts motorcycle inspection station. Feel free to drop in for this service.

Bay-4 Motorsports is located at 1615 Shawsheen St., Tewksbury. Mr. Handyman

If your free time is limited, you don't want to spend it on those home repairs that always take twice as long as expected. Gordon Ennis, owner of the Andover branch of Mr. Handyman, can take care of household and commercial building jobs large and small. As an example, he will do interior painting, clean gutters, repair screens, fix leaky faucets, clean and organize basements and garages, replace broken glass, repair brick steps, install pet doors and just about anything else you can think of. You can then feel free to spend more time with your children or maybe on the golf course.

Mr. Ennis charges by the hour. With 20 years of experience in the building industry, his home improvement skills enable him to quickly and efficiently complete jobs that would be so time consuming for the average homeowner. "Many of my clients like to save up projects for me to do in one visit, which usually takes much less time than they imagine," says Mr. Ennis.

Mr. Handyman's services are available year round. Mr. Ennis is bonded, insured, and registered in home improvement. He is a licensed construction supervisor with 15 years experience running his own general carpentry business. He has also studied electrical repair at the Franklin Institute.

hit relief, fanning three and walking one. He was struck by a line drive during his stint but was not hurt.

Andover, playing without top hitter/outfielder Kevin Shepard (strep throat), began its comeback with two runs in the bottom of the third.

Danny Hughes, who will attend Middlesex School in Concord next fall, laced a one-out single and took third on Jeff Volinski's double to left.

Josh Topp, who finished the game 4-for-4 with five RBI, followed with a two-run double to left-center.

Post 8 took a 7-3 lead with five runs in the fourth. Salini singled but was forced at second base on Chris Hanlon's attempted sacrifice bunt. Rich Sheldon singled and Chris Caverly walked to load the bases.

Volinski's two-run single to left-center rescued Hanlon and pinchrunner Mark Matos. Topp followed with a two-run triple to the gap in left-center, and Dave Powers completed the uprising with an RBI single.

In the Post 8 fifth Salini walked, Hanlon was hit by a pitch, Matos sacrificed both runners, and Caverly again walked to load the bases. Hughes ripped a two-run single up the middle and Topp spanked an RBI single to plate the final run.

Topp's four safeties, including a double and triple, sparked the season-high 14-hit assault.

Leadoff batter Hughes finished 3-for-4, with two RBI, and Volinski was 2-for-3 with a double, two RBI and two runs scored.

Wysocki and Matos also had a hit each.

Losing pitcher Jeff Cohane paced Revere with a two-run triple and three runs scored.

Andover 7 Methuen 1

Post 8 erupted for five runs in the bottom of the first at Aumais Park, providing a nice cushion for lefty Jeff Volinski (1-1) who pitched five innings of three-hit shutout ball and didn't walk a batter.

Mark Matos cleaned up with two frames of two-hit relief, losing the shutout in the seventh when Post 122 pitcher Steve Marquis tripled and scored on an infield out.

The five-run first began with a walk to Danny Hughes and an opposite-field RBI triple to left by Kevin Shepard, who then scored on Josh Topp's infield out.

The locals loaded the bases when Dave Powers singled, Sean Lawton singled and Andy Salini was hit by a pitch. Volinski cleared the sacks with a three-run double to left-center.

The final run came in the fifth on Lawton's sacrifice fly, plating Topp who doubled to left-center and moved to third on a long flyout to right field by Powers.

Powers and Lawton led the seven-hit Post 8 attack with two safeties each, while both also played strong defensive games at first and third base respectively.

Methuen Post 122 had one hit each from Marquis, Bo DelDuca, Jason Waldron (double), Billy Forbes and Jim Pritts.

◀ Steve Vickers (left) and Jason Caverly of Andover are members of the Cassell Club in the highly-regarded Intercity Baseball League. Both are playing well this summer and both were named to the West team which beat the East, 9-6, in the annual ICL All-Star Game last Thursday night at Morelli Field in Melrose. Vickers, a standout first baseman for Bentley College during the spring season, went 1-for-2 with a pair of RBI in the All-Star Game. For the regular Intercity League season, Vickers is hitting .429 with three homers and 19 RBI through 14 games. Caverly is batting .357 and leads Cassell Club in runs scored with 15. Both were standout players at Andover High and with the Andover Post 8 American Legion team. Vickers' dad, Bill, is a former AHS head varsity baseball coach.

Mr. Lussier goes to Washington

(in preparation)," laughs the self-proclaimed political junkie.

According to a White House release, each fellow has a unique life experience that equips him/her to serve during a presidential transition year. Lussier believes his profession and service as Teacher of the Year provided him with this uniqueness, adding that the fellows program has not had many teachers.

Lussier also believes that he and his colleagues were selected because they are "all entrepreneurial and can weather the change of administrations, while also having the leadership and patience to make it an exciting year."

Lussier wants to use this experience to speak on behalf of teachers and influence policy. As Mass. Teacher of the Year, he was able to do this. He spent the last year conducting workshops for colleagues, working with colleges on teacher-preparation programs, speaking on behalf of the 80,000 state public teachers on educational policy development and giving many speeches at businesses, colleges, and rotary clubs.

"I've had more chicken dinners this year than I've had in my life," jokes Lussier, who also developed a unique mentoring program that pairs veteran and new teachers.

Lussier admits he missed the classroom this past year, conceding, "I couldn't help but (find myself) waking up some days and not wanting to give a speech, but be with my kids in Andover High."

However, he clearly enjoys having a hand in policy and program development.

"My goal is to continue to work for teachers and students," he says, adding that his ideal next step would allow him to return to the classroom part time, so he could continue speaking and working on behalf of teachers.

This said, Lussier is keeping his options and mind open, preferring to see where the fellows experience leads him.

As for now, he is looking forward to the challenges he will encounter as a White House fellow. "I think it's going to be terrific!" he says.
